Overview of Position:

Why We Exist: The Asante Centre is committed to supporting individuals of all ages with neurodevelopmental diversities, and their families, to exceed their own expectations. We do that through quality assessment and diagnostic services, speech-language therapy, community training, education, resource access and development, peer mentorship, and research. We specialize in brain-based disabilities such as autism, fetal alcohol spectrum disorder (FASD), and other complex disorders influenced by a range of multigenerational trauma, early trauma, prenatal stress, mental health, and genetics. We value respect, integrity, and collaboration in all our work.

Why You Matter: Speech-language pathologists are a critical part of our interdisciplinary team, helping families and service providers understand how to support communication skills. You will bring your valuable perspective and experiences to the team; we will learn from each other and work together with families and caregivers.

Skills You Have: You have a supportive and compassionate mind-frame, balanced with professional skills in standardized assessment and intervention. You acknowledge the importance of family and culture involvement throughout the assessment process and care planning. You are willing to travel from time to time to complete assessments and consultations. You are enthusiastic, creative, and organized. You can work independently and as part of our already developed SLP team. You are skilled at time management, collaboration, and problem-solving.

Specific Duties:

- Provide speech-language assessment, therapy and consultation through our Intervention Program.

Qualifications:

- Master's Degree in Speech-Language Pathology or equivalent
- Current registration to work in British Columbia through CSHBC
- Excellent interpersonal and relationship building skills
- Ability to perform duties independently as well as with an interdisciplinary team
- Flexibility and creativity to adapt to and influence our continuously growing and expanding environment
- Experience working with people who have complex needs such as those with FASD, ASD, and/or trauma
- Up to date criminal record check for working with vulnerable populations
